DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claim 18-29 allowed, renumbered as 1-12.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

There no prior art teach or suggest a portable intrusion detection appliance, consisting of: a small, lightweight, low-cost, easily portable body having a back, a base, a front and a plurality of side walls; an infrared motion sensor held in the body; a microprocessor held in the body and connected to the infrared motion sensor; the microprocessor including means to activate an audio output in response to receipt of a signal signifying that motion has been detected by the infrared motion sensor; a record/playback device having a microphone coupled to the microprocessor for recording ambient sound held in the body; a non-volatile storage medium held in the body for storing the audio output and the ambient sound; an input jack in one of the plurality of side walls of the body for coupling a separate transceiver to the microprocessor, whereby the separate transceiver may be activated by the microprocessor to receive and broadcast the audio output and the ambient sound; the base allowing the portable intrusion detection appliance to be mounted in an upright position in an area to be monitored; and the back including a securing means for selectively, releasably securing the body to a further item; and an internal power source held in the body and coupled to the microprocessor.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Hess (US 6441731) discloses an alarm transmission apparatus.

Roberts (US 6765486) discloses a portable alarm system that interfaces with an individual's personal radio.
